FIELD IV: ENGLISH LITERATURE FROM 1600 TO 1660

STATEMENT OF EXPECTATIONS
AS PUBLISHED ON MAY 19, 2014

Graduate students taking the field exam in English Literature 1600-1660 must be conversant on all primary and secondary texts on the reading list. Their responses to questions should demonstrate an ability to answer complex questions directly, thoughtfully, and concisely. Their responses should make connections among multiple primary texts and incorporate relevant criticism in a manner that indicates familiarity with influential critical perspectives. In addition, their answers should incorporate clear theses, structured arguments, and accurate prose. Students should demonstrate an awareness of the historical, cultural, and bibliographic contexts in which English literary works were composed, disseminated, and received in this period. Familiarity with religious and political changes in seventeenth-century England, particularly as they pertain to the Civil Wars and Interregnum, is critical. In addition, students should be prepared to address the following subtopics: Shakespeare’s seventeenth-century plays and sonnets, masques, city comedies, Metaphysical and Cavalier poetry, philosophical and scientific texts, propagandistic writings, including pamphlets, and Milton’s prose and poetry. Graduate students must receive a passing score on all questions in order to pass this exam.
